When was the last time someone gave you FREE money? Well this is for real, so you better hurry because we'll tell you how to get yours FREE.

There has been a well kept secret that The United States Commemorative Gallery has secured a massive amount of the last 1999 U.S. Coins of the Century.

But, when word got out that the gallery had these 1999 coins, everyone wanted to know why they were hoarding them.

It has now been revealed that each coin is being specially plated in pure 24Kt Gold and intended to be sold individually or as a complete five-coin collector's set to commemorate the Final Minting of the 1999 coins.

But without notice, the Gallery decided not to sell the individual coins but instead will give them away FREE in an effort to increase awareness of the age-old hobby of collecting U.S. Coins and to promote a new generation of coin collectors as we move into the new millennium.

"It is highly important that we foster the continued collection of special U.S. coins as we enter the next century," said J. Thomas White, Director of the privately owned United States Commemorative Gallery.

"Coin collectors preserve an important part of our American heritage, and now, this FREE giveaway of coins specially plated in pure 24Kt Gold will make great strides in continuing this American tradition," White said.

"Most people want something they can hand down to their children or grandchildren. Others want something meaningful to give as a gift to someone special. These coins plated in pure 24Kt Gold will serve both purposes because 1999 is definitely a year to remember," White said.

The Gallery will offer a controlled number

These coins are from among the last U.S. coins to be minted this century. Each coin has been plated and preserved with pure 24Kt Gold and then encased as shown here in the complete five-coin U.S. Commemorative Gallery collector's display set.

of the complete five-coin sets to the general public for only $11. They cannot promise that everyone who wants them will be able to get the complete five-coin set. So be sure to hurry because they will be released on a first-come, first-served basis. But for now, they guarantee the availability of the individual coins they are giving away FREE.

Simple instructions are provided in the box to the right for readers to claim the FREE coins or to get the complete five-coin set. The Gallery guarantees you will receive one of the FREE Coins you select.

To properly protect your coin in shipment and as an appropriate display, they are offering the special Gallery Approved Protective Display case for the FREE individual coins. "We highly recommend the display case to prevent unnecessary handling of the coins," White said.

We are providing the direct telephone number and address so readers can immediately get the FREE coins. This makes another wonderful reason to celebrate the new millennium. ■
